Prompt 1: Vocabulary builder

Arden is going to help you put together a mind map for the word 'pink' using coggle.it.

What do you think about when you think of the colour pink?

What associations does it have for you?

What related vocabulary words can you think of?

(linked words, synonyms, opposites... try using <https://www.wordhippo.com/> if you aren't sure)

If you had to describe the colour pink to someone who didn't know what it was, how would you describe it?

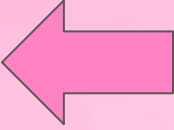

Prompt 1: Vocabulary builder - our mind map

Choose three words from the mind map (they do not have to be related) as a combined prompt for your piece.

Prompt 2: In response to classic (queer) poets...

- Emily Dickinson, 'Frequently the woods are pink.' HERE
- Christina Rossetti, 'Color.' HERE
- Henry Lawson, 'The Pink Carnation.' HERE
- Siegfried Sassoon, 'In the Pink'. HERE

Prompt 2: In response to classic (queer) poets...

- Imagine you are having a poetic conversation with this poet - what could you say after they said this? What could you say after just the first line?
- What could you say that would make this poet angry? Why?
- What could you say that would please this poet? Why?
- How could you subvert the subject matter of this poem and make it about something else?

Prompt 3: visual hybrids and ekphrasis

'Pink' by Arden
Hunter, part of 'Stop
Fidgeting' (coming out late 2022)

Choose one of the images as a prompt for your piece.

- How important is the colour pink to this image? If you changed it to another colour, what difference would it make?
- What would the opposite of this image be? Why?
- What other surprising connections or juxtapositions could you make related to this image?
- If you had to write one word across this image to cause a strong reaction in the viewer, what would the word be?
- What feelings does this image evoke in you? Would it evoke the same feelings in someone else? Why/why not?

The background of the slide is a solid pink color with a subtle, low-poly geometric pattern. The pattern consists of various shades of pink forming irregular polygons, creating a textured, crystalline effect.

Thank you!
